

CSU CAMPUS ENVIRONMENTAL COMMITTEES

WHAT IS A CAMPUS ENVIRONMENTAL COMMITTEE (CEC)?

The CEC's are campus-based groups of staff and students, who work together with CSU Green to help make our University more sustainable. A CEC has been established on each of our major teaching campuses Albury - Wodonga, Bathurst, Dubbo Orange, Port Macquarie, Wagga Wagga

THE SPECIFIC ROLES OF THE CEC'S ARE TO:

Help develop and implement strategies to achieve CSU's sustainability targets through actions such as undertaking projects, seeking funding, and contributing to educational programs for the wider University community

Initiate environmental or recreational projects to promote or enhance sustainability on campus

Prepare an annual report, outlining the environmental initiatives undertaken by the group, and suggest possible future initiatives

Recommend representatives to attend environmental conferences, as deemed appropriate by the University

To support the facilitation of the implementation of the 16 LiFE action plans to progress towards best practice in sustainability

WHO CAN JOIN A CEC?

All CSU staff and students are eligible to join their CEC. Selection is by expression of interest, with members chosen to represent a range of University schools, offices and divisions.

WHAT IS INVOLVED IN BEING A MEMBER OF A CEC?

CEC members should commit to:
Attending CEC meetings, held at least four times per year

Assisting with campus sustainability projects, where possible
