

20th February, 2008

Final report regarding the Scholarship in Learning and Teaching project.

Title of project:

How the personal qualities of university educators impact on teaching and learning

Chief Investigators:

Dr. Andrea Reupert, School of Education, Charles Sturt University, Wagga Wagga
Dr. Darryl Maybery, School of Humanities, Charles Sturt University, Wagga Wagga

Papers generated as a result of this project:

Reupert, A., & Maybery, D. (in press). Is anyone there? Being 'present' in distant education. In A.T. Ragusa & A. Chan (Eds.), Interaction in Communication Technologies & Virtual Learning Environments: Human Factors. New York:IGI Global.

Reupert, A., Maybery, D., Patrick, K., & Chittleborough, P. (submitted) Instructor's personal presence in distance programs. Higher Education.

Maybery, D., Chittleborough, P., Patrick, K., & Reupert, A. (2006). Marketing CSU psychology. Unpublished paper prepared for Faculty of Arts, Charles Sturt University.

Chittleborough, P., Maybery, D., Patrick, K., & Reupert, A. (2006). Impact of electronic teaching practices on student outcomes. Maximising opportunity and minimising risk conference, (Poster), Charles Sturt University.

Presentations:

Reupert, A. (2008). The role of the personal in higher education. School of Education seminar series.

Reupert, A. & Maybery, D. (2007). Researching teaching: an example of how, when and where. Tertiary Teaching Colloquia (TTC), Charles Sturt University, Wagga Wagga.

Papers still in process:

Reupert, A. What about me: the place of the personal in higher education. To be submitted to the Journal of Higher Education (planned due date for submission is before Easter, 2008).