Forums

A Forum is one of the best computer assisted ways to have conversations with staff and students of the University. A Forum is an electronic version of a meeting place, that you can use to read fellow students' questions, messages and comments, as well as the corresponding answers, or responses. A Forum is the meeting place of written conversations that can help set study expectations, assists with administrative matters and allow you to meet and communicate with students who ordinarily you would have little of no contact with. You may contribute to a Forum, or you may just want to read what is in one.

In addition to subject specific forums, there are several general forums you may wish to participate in:

- Student Life forum
- CSU General forum
- Student Services forum

All forums are accessible through my.csu. For more information on forums refer to the Student Services Online Learning web site.

Note: CSU forums are only accessible to those students with a current username and password.
