includes:

Bachelor of Educational Research (Honours)

The Bachelor of Educational Research (Honours) is an embedded end on Honours qualifications and enables students to select from a wide range of methodologies providing considerable flexibility in research design. Entry to this course is via the Graduate Certificate in Educational Research which provides an introduction to educational research, an overview of common educational research methods, and an in-depth focus on qualitative and quantitative research methodologies. Such study prepares students for the dissertation undertaken for the Bachelor of Educational Research (Honours). Graduates acquire the disposition to seek reason, explanation and justification; and the skills of investigation, analysis, reflection, interrogation of data, and the reporting on the outcome of these processes. This course does not include professional experience placements.
